Deadlines can yield miracles. Just ask Meg Corley, founder and principal designer of Meg Corley Premier Interiors in Birmingham, who was put to the test with a 9,300-square-foot home remodel in Rochester that needed to be finished in time for the backyard wedding of her clients' son. "We had pretty much demolished the entire home, and then the lockdown started," Corley says. "The initial wedding date was moved to early September, and luckily my clients weren't living [in the home]."

"We wanted to save the amazing bones and other details, like the molding that was already in place," Corley continues, describing the Moozzi custom home which was built in 1999. (Marie Moozzi, one of the owners of Moozzi Custom Moozzi, had lived in the home.)

The property made quite the impression on Steven and Anne DiMaggio, who have four grown children. "It has an amazing backyard. They fell in love with the pond, four waterfalls, and the bridge, and they wanted to love the inside just as much," Corley says.

Classic updates make a statement right from the start, with a series of triangle prints above a smoky gray velvet sofa in the great room, near the entrance. "It's very dramatic," Corley says. She explains that she considers the new look more current, with a relaxed traditional aesthetic.

The existing millwork got a makeover, including the oak details in the library. "We used a really dark gel stain that made them sing a little more, and added wallcovering to the back of the
